The following is a "check list" which can be used to determine just how progressive a community is. A few of these won't apply here but most do. Compilers of the list say that when a community can answer "yes" to 30 or more of the questions, then the citizens can take pride in their town. If they answer yes to fewer than 30, then somebody better get to work:

Law Requires Immunization For All Age Group Students

All children entering Texas elementary or secondary schools and institutions of higher education must have immunized against six diseases, according to Senate Bill 27 which amends section 2.09 of the Texas Education Code.

The State Department of Health shall provide the required immunizations to children in areas where no local provision exists to provide these services.

According to C. F. Cook superintendent of Hamlin Schools, children may receive the immunizations from their local physicians. Most of our students have already met the requirements Cook said. "But it will be necessary for them to have records of their immunizations before registration in the fall."

The six diseases include diptheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis, measles, rubella and smallpox.

The immunization requirements apply to all students attending public, private or parochial schools. The only exceptions will be when an affidavit signed by a physican is presented stating the immunization required would be injurious to the student's health or when the student presents an affidavit signed by the parent or guardian stating the immunizations are in conflict with religious convictions.

At least three doses of oral vaccine for polio with one or more of the doses having been received since the fourth birthday will be required of all students under age 19.

All students must have received the smallpox vaccination within the past 10 years. Rubella immunization is not required of students past the age of 12, but one dose is required of all those under 12.

One dose of measles vaccine will be required of all students who have not had the disease or whose physician will confirm a natural immunity to the disease.

At least three doses of diptheria and tetanus vaccine for all children from six to 10 will be required and boosters for older ages.

Schools will be required to maintain records of the immunization status of their students after the initial registration.

Starting with the 1972 spring semester, new enrollees must complete the required immunizations as soon as is medically feasible.

BEAUTY IN STINKING CREEK — A Texas Tech University research team, studying the environmental impact of salt retention structures on the upper Brazos River Basin, recommended to the Corps of Engineers that dams be constructed to avoid losing such scenic areas as this one on Stinking Creek, named after animals refused to drink its brackish water. BY CORPS OF ENGINEERS—

Series of Dams On Brazos River Basin Being Proposed

LUBBOCK — The Brazos River Basin of more than 44,000 square miles, or 15 percent of the land area of Texas, is the largest intrastate watershed in the nation, and its value is limited by poor water quality.

To help solve the problem, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers proposes to erect a system of dams along the upper Brazos, in the area sometimes referred to as the "Gypsum Province," to hold back the tons of minerals which cause natural pollution of the river.

These dams would cut to a minimum the 1,250 tons of salt which now flow daily out of Possum Kingdom Reservoir near Mineral Wells and down the Brazos to its mouth near Freeport.

A Texas Tech University study team has completed an environmental impact analysis of the proposed salt retention structures.

Their conclusion is that the environmental impact of the project on the six-county affected area "will not be great." The researchers pointed out, however, that the adverse effects of the project will be on the upstream counties while the principal benefits will be downstream.

Geological and aesthetic problems suggested some modifications to the 11-man research team, and the researchers reported that ecological changes created by the dams might be offset in part by future uses of the reservoirs.

The impoundments would be limited primarily to the sparsely settled Kent, Stonewall and King Counties. Dickens, Garza and Fisher counties might also be affected.

Six different solutions were proposed by the Corps of Engineers, each comprising a different system of dams. The research team studied the environmental impact of each solution. Possible dam sites were located on the Salt Fork of the Brazos River, in Verbena Canyon in Garza County and along McDonald, Salt, Croton, Salt Croton, Stinking, Red Mud, Duck, and North Croton creeks.

"Looking at the problem from a basin-wide viewpoint," the reports said, "it would appear that the sacrifice of a small fraction of the water and a much smaller fraction (less than one-tenth of 1 percent) of the land in the basin for the benefit of the rest of the basin would be a reasonable tradeoff — unless there are serious intangible adverse effects associated with the tradeoff."

In the final report, the researchers said there "are few, if any, adverse environmental effects which cannot be avoided should the proposal be implemented." The research was carried out under the direction of the Texas Tech University Water Resources Center with the support of the Corps of Engineers.

The shift of one dam was proposed to preserve the scenic quality of Stinking Creek, named for the flavor of its brackish water and without regard for its canyon beauty.

Where impoundment would cause rapid leakage and heavy silting because of geographic location and local geology, it was proposed that low level dams be constructed and water transferred from Croton and Salt Croton creeks to a more stable reservoir at another location.

While alternative solutions may possess greater potential in the future, the researchers said that from an environmental impact standpoint the proposed combination of low flow and total impoundment reservoirs is the best course of action.

They recommend as little disturbance as possible of grasses and other ground cover in the area and continued surveillance of water quality in the reservoirs to protect against pollution from runoff from chemically treated farmlands or from bacteria which would harm waterfowl.

The recreational potential of the proposed impoundments is limited, the report said, because of the brackish quality of the water. There would be limited opportunities, however, for the husbandry of game birds and some game animals for public and private recreational hunting. In addition, pleasant hiking and riding trails might be established in the vicinity of the reservoirs. Some boating might be encouraged although heavy waves hitting against red, silty soil banks could cause heavy erosion. Some "second home" sites at some distance from the unstable shorelines could be developed.

No endangered species of wildlife live in the area, and although the area lies within the center of a region known as the Comanche Culture Area, no significant historical or archaeological sites would be inundated by the reservoirs.

Working on the environmental study were Geosciences Prof. C. C. Reeves, Chairman Harold E. Dregne and Prof. B. L. Allen of the Department of Agronomy, Director Dan M. Wells and Assistant Director Robert M. Sweazy of the Water Resources Center, Park Administration Profs. James W. Kitchen and J. D. Mertes, Range and Wildlife Prof. Eric G. Bolen, and graduate students Robert D. Webster, Ronnie R. George and G. T. Damuth. Webster is a civil engineer. Damuth is working toward an advanced degree in park administration, and George is doing graduate work in the Department of Range and Wildlife Management.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wayne Sikes of Abilene are parents of a boy, Jerry Brian, 7 lbs. 6½ oz., born June 22 at 9:05 a.m.

Questions and Answers

Q. I will be getting married this month. Since I will be protected as the wife of a worker covered by social security, why do I have to contribute?

A. When you are ready to retire, you might qualify for higher cash benefits based on your own eligibility and earnings record. During your working years, you and your children could receive disability benefits based on your work record. And, if you should die while your children are still young, they could receive monthly survivors benefits based on your record.

Q. I am retired and receive monthly social security benefits. I am planning to spend next year visiting my children, who are scattered all over the country. What should I do about getting my benefit checks?

A. We suggest you visit your Post Office and arrange for the checks to be forwarded. It would be best to settle on one or two addresses that will be most convenient for you, rather than try to change your address every month or so. If you later decide to move permanently, notify social security of your new address.

Q. I work in a day care center operated by my church. Since my work is not covered under social security, I do not pay contributions to the program. Can I voluntarily pay into social security so I will be able to get monthly benefits at 62?

A. No. You cannot voluntarily contribute to social security to build up credit toward benefits. There is a way for employees of nonprofit religious organizations to get social security coverage. For full details, contact any social security office.

Have a question about social security and its retirement, survivors, disability or Medicare benefits? See your telephone directory for the phone number and address of the nearest social security office.

Over 150 million social security numbers have been issued since 1936.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Missing Letter

There is something reassuring about the click of the mailbox latch, as your important letter slides down and out of sight. Whether you are making an insurance payment or meeting a tax deadline or completing a business deal, you feel relief: "Well, that's taken care of."

But what if the other party, perhaps weeks or months afterward, insists that your letter never arrived? If it came to a showdown in court, how would you stand?

Fortunately, the law offers you a helping hand in the form of a "presumption." That is, the law will presume that the letter did arrive, provided you had the correct amount of postage and the correct address. As one court explained:

"It is a presumption founded on the probability that (postal employees) will do their duty."

Furthermore, you may get the benefit of the presumption even if the letter was not placed directly into a mailbox. One court applied the presumption to a letter handed to a mailman (while on duty). Another court applied it to a letter dropped into the mail chute of an office building.

However, there are limits. The presumption was denied when a man simply left some mail in an open lobby, in the expectation that the mailman would eventually pick it up.

Furthermore, like most presumptions, this one is subject to being defeated if there is sufficient evidence against it.

In one case, an embattled debtor claimed to have mailed an important legal notice to the office of his creditors. But in a court hearing, both partners in the firm took the witness stand and solemnly swore that the notice had never been received.

Then their bookkeeper took the stand and swore the same thing.

This testimony was enough to convince the court that the letter had indeed failed to reach its destination. It was more likely, said the court, either that the debtor had neglected to put it in the mail or that the post office had—for once—neglected to do its duty.

Philosopher Comes Out Against New Chemical To Make People Remember

(Editor's note: The Neinda Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Route One tackles a new problem this week.)

Dear editar:

According to an article I read yesterday while resting my brain from all the secret documents the newspapers have been filled with lately, scientists have been working on a new chemical they claim will improve man's memory.

They haven't tried it on people yet, but they say it may be possible to develop a chemical that'll perk up the memory section of the brain and enable a man to remember far more than he now does.

If there ever was a piece of information that ought to have been classified as Top Secret and not to be published for at least a hundred years, that should have been it.

That sort of chemical, if it works, will wreck most governments of the world. What politician could stay in office more than one term if people remembered today what he said six months ago? From the Peloponnesian War to modern times, how many peace candidates have would up as elected war leaders? Don't ask me because I forget.

If taxes had been reduced every time a cut has been promised, a man could live mighty cheap just on pleasnat memories.

If Congress is smart it'll ban this new memory chemical before it gets out of the test tube. A forgetful electorate is the key to a happy officialdom, and the same goes for most marriages, all human relations and a good many children.

Other people's forgetting is one of the handiest things ever invented to keep a man going.

Those scientists are working on the wrong chemical. What I want is one that'll blot out, not freshen, some of the recollections some of my neighbors have.

You show me a man who can remember everything and I'll show you a man who knows more than he shold about you and me.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

STATE Capital NEWS

BY VERN SANFORD

(Editor's Note — Bill Boykin replaces Vern Sanford as columnist of this weekly Texas Press Association feature. Sanford retired July 1 after serving TPA for almost 24 years. This column solicits questions about state government news and information. Address your questions to this newspaper, and they will be forwarded to the Austin office.

AUSTIN, Tex. — July 1 turned out to be a costly date for Texans. Not only did the nearly $1 million-a-day ($604 million biennially) tax bill take effect, but property owners got notice of hikes of up to 25 percent in their insurance rates. And just the day before (see below) the State Insurance Board staff recommended an average 2.8 percent increase in private auto insurance coverage effective September 1.

Tax bill raises the general sales tax from 3.25 percent to four percent statewide (five percent in many cities which also levy a local sales tax); adds three cents a pack to cigarette taxes; increases liquor tax about seven cents a fifth; raises beer tax a fraction of a cent a bottle; jumps sales tax on new cars to four percent (bringing in car rentals) and jacks up corporate franchise levy $1.25 per $1,000 of capital.

A 10 percent tax on mixed drink sales went into effect last month.

A new kind of "surtax" takes effect September 1. It will cost moving traffic law violators $2.50; other misdemeanor violators tried in county court, $5, and those convicted of felony, $10.

Raise in homeowners' and other kinds of property insurance came without formal announcement other than notices to local agents.

Homeowners' rates rose 25 percent along the seacoast (hit by Hurricane Celia last August) and in tornado-struck north-northwest territory of the state. Central area homeowners' rate jumped 22.1 percent, too.

Extended coverage of all classes went up 25 percent on the coast, 24.5 percent in north-northwest and 19.7 percent in the central area. Extended coverage for dwellings is up 25 percent on the coast and north-northwest 19.3 percent in central part of the state.

Fire insurance coverage increases 5.2 percent — or 7.1 percent for dwellings.

AUTO INSURANCE UP AGAIN? — State Insurance Board staff recommended an average 2.8 percent statewide passenger car insurance rate hike effective September 1.

Board heard recommendations at a public hearing here June 30 and indicated a decision will be made about mid-August.

Industry, which won a 14 percent boost in rates January 1 after asking 27.7 percent, is asking 9.8 percent increase (average statewide) on passenger car coverage.

Seven state legislators and the state AFL-CIO president argued that a decline in accidents justifies lowering rather than raising rates. Since rates are fixed by territories, not statewide, some areas under Board staff recommendations would receive reductions in certain lines of coverage.

MORE WELFARE WOES LOOM — A top court decision declaring needy non-citizens eligible for assistance, threat of increasing finance burdens from federal legislation and rising medical costs put the State Board of Public Welfare on red alert again last week.

Board was told the federal bill would "save" the state $57.1 million in existing payments — bur might double the number of Texans eligible for medical care benefits (which will cost $135.7 million next year).

Supreme Court decision on aliens would add 20,000 to state welfare rolls overnight at a cost of more than $10 million a year, Deputy Welfare Commissioner Herbert Wilson estimated.

New welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said negotiations are under way to place limits on runaway medical care costs, while maintaining adequate services.

18-YEAR-OLDS CAN VOTE — Texas' 18-19- and 20-year-olds who are registered to vote can participate in any election starting this month, Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. points out.

Ratification by the 38th state of the teen-age voter constitutional amendment placed it into effect immediately, Dies said.

Any election which is now in progress "must allow those 18, 19 and 20 years old to vote if they are presently registered," Dies, chief eelection officer for Texas, advised.

Young voters not now registered must wait until registration period reopens October 1.

SHORT SNORTS

State general revenue deficit dropped from a peak of $173.5 million April 29 to $11.9 n illion million June 24 and will go into the black by August 31, State Treasurer Jesse James reports.

Bids on the second phase of construction of the $3 million water exchange pass across Mustang Island will be opened July 12 by Parks and Wildlife Department.

Parks and Wildlife Department won three major awards in international competition for best conservation information programs.

Ardell M. Young of Fort Worth was named by Gov. Preson Smith to succeed retired 153rd District Judge Harold Craik.

New state bank charters are sought in Sattler (Comal County) and Katy (Fort Bend County).

R. H. (Dick) Cory, former Victoria legislator, succeeds Homer Leonard as general counsel and executive vice-president of Texas Brewers' Institute.

Mike Brown Leaves Today for Service

Mike Brown will leave from Abilene today (Thursday) for Fort Polk, La., for eight weeks of basic infantry training in the U.S. Army

A 1969 graduate of Hamlin High School, Brown enlisted last week. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown and attended Hardin-Simmons University.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Young returned home Friday after visiting relatives since May 28 in Orlando, Fla., Elba, Ala., Dozier, Ala., Athens, Ga., Terre Haute, Ind., and Park River, N. D. They also took a trip into Moden, Canada.

BIG SAVINGS ON GENERAL ELECTRIC APPLIANCES-STEREO-TV

For the 14th year in a row — here comes the General Electric appliance train! It's loaded with GE refrigerators, freezers, color TV's, washers, dryers, air conditioners and other major items for your kitchen and/or home entertainment. At big savings for you! Here's why:

GE is the only major manufacturer which ships all its appliances from one location — Louisville, Kentucky. Each year at the start of the summer season the Southwest Distributor assembles at the factory a large selection of special production models. Included are some closeouts and discontinued models. These are ordered by dealers in the Southwest at savings from regular prices. Because most of this merchandise is delivered by direct-to-dealer rail cars, savings are made in freight, warehousing, handling and paperwork. These savings are passed on to you — as much as $80.00 on some items.

Naturally, there is a limited supply of some models. So don't delay — if you plan to buy a major appliance, color TV or stereo soon, shop these bargains today!

And What Have You

By BOB CRAIG

In an effort to get off on a long weekend with my family over the Fourth this column is being written on Friday. Really it is being borrowed from the Van Horn Advocate.

The following is a "check list" which can be used to determine just how progressive a community is. A few of these won't apply here but most do. Compilers of the list say that when a community can answer "yes" to 30 or more of the questions, then the citizens can take pride in their town. If they answer yes to fewer than 30, then somebody better get to work:

Most high school and college students stay in town.
Getting a loan on a sound business venture is easy.
The local paper constantly pushes civic improvements.
There's a Chamber of Commerce with a live-wire manager.
Local speeders pay the same fines as out-of-towners.
Young couples have little trouble finding a place to live.
There's a place to swim within easy reach.
The head of your city government is "a get-things-done" man.
Town entrances are free from junk, shacks and billboards.
There's at least one doctor per 800 people in your county.
Teachers' salaries are better than the state average.
There's a library with a good collection of new books.
Newcomers quickly feel they are part of the town.
Schools have plenty of room for students.
Fire insurance rates are low for your type of town.
Service veterans, women's clubs team up on projects.
There are active, well-organized Boy Scout and Girl Scout programs.
A modern hospital is within your trading area.
All streets are paved and sidewalks are in good shape.
There's a hotel or motel you'd enjoy if you were a visitor.
It's easy to find parking space in the business section.
At least one restaurant serves outstanding meals.
The sewer extension program keeps pace with new housing.
It's easy to get volunteers for any worthwhile project.
Public rest rooms are provided for shoppers in town.
Prompt, reasonably priced ambulance service is available.
Good Zoning keeps commercial firms away from residential areas.
There's an annual Clean-up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up week.
Streets throughout the community are well lighted.
More than half the church congregations are under 40 years of age.
Shade trees line nearly all the streets.
There's an ample supply of drinking water.
There's a recreational center where young people can dance.
The business section has a modern, prosperous look.
There's much interest in local as well as national elections.
The tax rate is attractive to new industry.
There's an active Parent-Teachers Association.
Firemen must take regular training courses.
A continuous street marking program makes it easy for residents and visitors to find their way about town.
The police force must take regular training courses.
Drive-in establishments keep their facilities cleaned up at all times.
Citizens have a positive outlook and attitude about their town.

Law Requires Immunization For All Age Group Students

All children entering Texas elementary or secondary schools and institutions of higher education must have immunized against six diseases, according to Senate Bill 27 which amends section 2.09 of the Texas Education Code.

The State Department of Health shall provide the required immunizations to children in areas where no local provision exists to provide these services.

According to C. F. Cook superintendent of Hamlin Schools, children may receive the immunizations from their local physicians. Most of our students have already met the requirements Cook said. "But it will be necessary for them to have records of their immunizations before registration in the fall."

The six diseases include diptheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis, measles, rubella and smallpox.

The immunization requirements apply to all students attending public, private or parochial schools. The only exceptions will be when an affidavit signed by a physican is presented stating the immunization required would be injurious to the student's health or when the student presents an affidavit signed by the parent or guardian stating the immunizations are in conflict with religious convictions.

At least three doses of oral vaccine for polio with one or more of the doses having been received since the fourth birthday will be required of all students under age 19.

All students must have received the smallpox vaccination within the past 10 years. Rubella immunization is not required of students past the age of 12, but one dose is required of all those under 12.

One dose of measles vaccine will be required of all students who have not had the disease or whose physician will confirm a natural immunity to the disease.

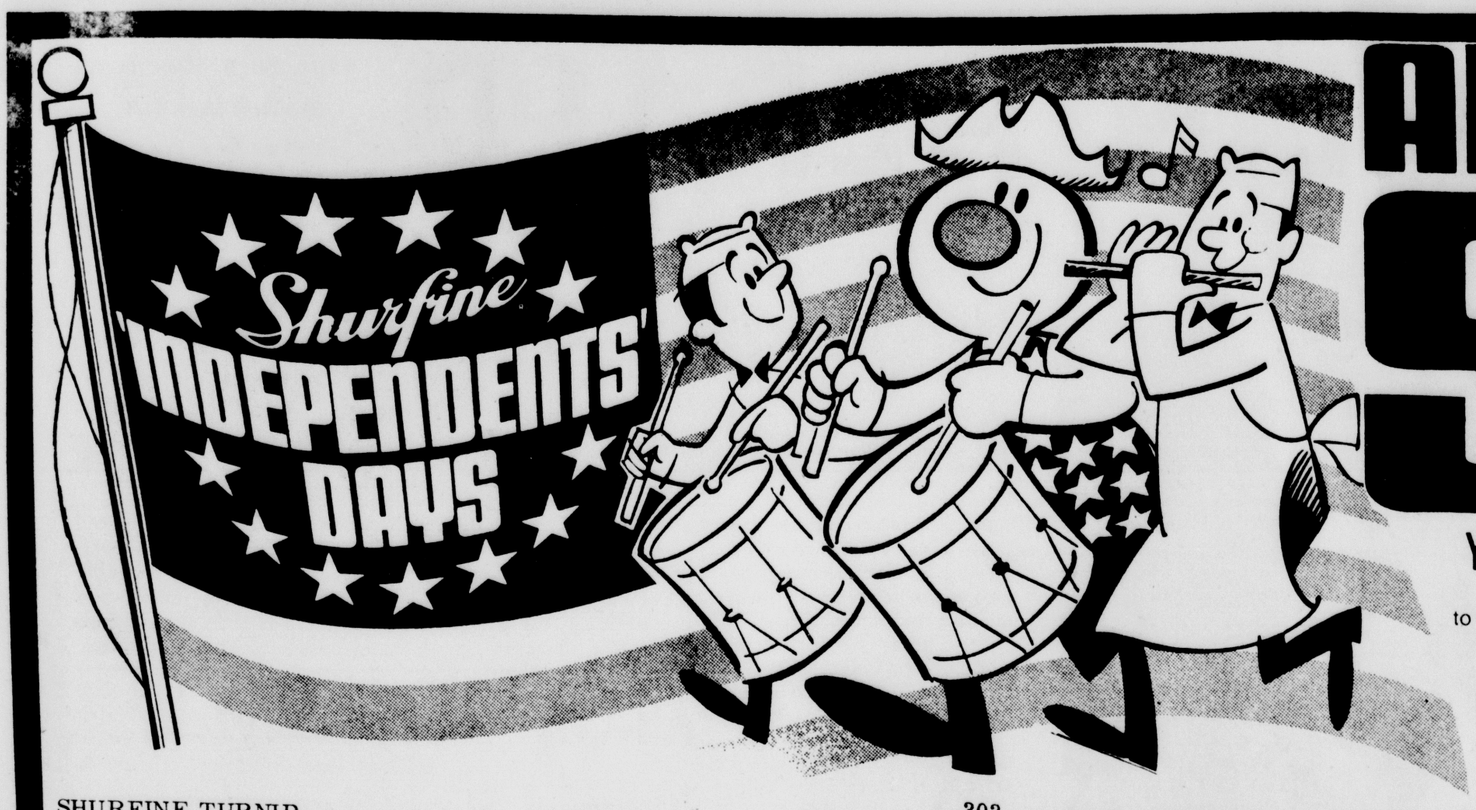

At least three doses of diptheria and tetanus vaccine for all children from six to 10 will be required and boosters for older ages.

Schools will be required to maintain records of the immunization status of their students after the initial registration.

Starting with the 1972 spring semester, new enrollees must complete the required immunizations as soon as is medically feasible.

BEAUTY IN STINKING CREEK — A Texas Tech University research team, studying the environmental impact of salt retention structures on the upper Brazos River Basin, recommended to the Corps of Engineers that dams be constructed to avoid losing such scenic areas as this one on Stinking Creek, named after animals refused to drink its brackish water. (Tech photo)

BY CORPS OF ENGINEERS—

Series of Dams On Brazos River Basin Being Proposed

LUBBOCK — The Brazos River Basin of more than 44,000 square miles, or 15 percent of the land area of Texas, is the largest intrastate watershed in the nation, and its value is limited by poor water quality.

To help solve the problem, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers proposes to erect a system of dams along the upper Brazos, in the area sometimes referred to as the "Gypsum Province," to hold back the tons of minerals which cause natural pollution of the river.

These dams would cut to a minimum the 1,250 tons of salt which now flow daily out of Possum Kingdom Reservoir near Mineral Wells and down the Brazos to its mouth near Freeport.

A Texas Tech University study team has completed an environmental impact analysis of the proposed salt retention structures.

Their conclusion is that the environmental impact of the project on the six-county affected area "will not be great." The researchers pointed out, however, that the adverse effects of the project will be on the upstream counties while the principal benefits will be downstream.

Geological and aesthetic problems suggested some modifications to the 11-man research team, and the researchers reported that ecological changes created by the dams might be offset in part by future uses of the reservoirs.

The impoundments would be limited primarily to the sparsely settled Kent, Stonewall and King Counties. Dickens, Garza and Fisher counties might also be affected.

Six different solutions were proposed by the Corps of Engineers, each comprising a different system of dams. The research team studied the environmental impact of each solution. Possible dam sites were located on the Salt Fork of the Brazos River, in Verbena Canyon in Garza County and along McDonald, Salt, Croton, Salt Croton, Stinking, Red Mud, Duck, and North Croton creeks.

"Looking at the problem from a basin-wide viewpoint," the reports said, "it would appear that the sacrifice of a small fraction of the water and a much smaller fraction (less than one-tenth of 1 percent) of the land in the basin for the benefit of the rest of the basin would be a reasonable tradeoff — unless there are serious intangible adverse effects associated with the tradeoff."

In the final report, the researchers said there "are few, if any, adverse environmental effects which cannot be avoided should the proposal be implemented." The research was carried out under the direction of the Texas Tech University Water Resources Center with the support of the Corps of Engineers.

The shift of one dam was proposed to preserve the scenic quality of Stinking Creek, named for the flavor of its brackish water and without regard for its canyon beauty.

Where impoundment would cause rapid leakage and heavy silting because of geographic location and local geology, it was proposed that low level dams be constructed and water transferred from Croton and Salt Croton creeks to a more stable reservoir at another location.

While alternative solutions may possess greater potential in the future, the researchers said that from an environmental impact standpoint the proposed combination of low flow and total impoundment reservoirs is the best course of action.

They recommend as little disturbance as possible of grasses and other ground cover in the area and continued surveillance of water quality in the reservoirs to protect against pollution from runoff from chemically treated farmlands or from bacteria which would harm waterfowl.

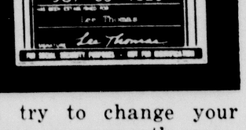

The recreational potential of the proposed impoundments is limited, the report said, because of the brackish quality of the water. There would be limited opportunities, however, for the husbandry of game birds and some game animals for public and private recreational hunting. In addition, pleasant hiking and riding trails might be established in the vicinity of the reservoirs. Some boating might be encouraged although heavy waves hitting against red, silty soil banks could cause heavy erosion. Some "second home" sites at some distance from the unstable shorelines could be developed.

No endangered species of wildlife live in the area, and although the area lies within the center of a region known as the Comanche Culture Area, no significant historical or archaeological sites would be inundated by the reservoirs.

Working on the environmental study were Geosciences Prof. C. C. Reeves, Chairman Harold E. Dregne and Prof. B. L. Allen of the Department of Agronomy, Director Dan M. Wells and Assistant Director Robert M. Sweazy of the Water Resources Center, Park Administration Profs. James W. Kitchen and J. D. Mertes, Range and Wildlife Prof. Eric G. Questions and Answers

Q. I will be getting married this month. Since I will be protected as the wife of a worker covered by social security, why do I have to contribute?

A. When you are ready to retire, you might qualify for higher cash benefits based on your own eligibility and earnings record. During your working years, you and your children could receive disability benefits based on your work record. And, if you should die while your children are still young, they could receive monthly survivors benefits based on your record.

Q. I am retired and receive monthly social security benefits. I am planning to spend next year visiting my children, who are scattered all over the country. What should I do about getting my benefit checks?

A. We suggest you visit your Post Office and arrange for the checks to be forwarded. It would be best to settle on one or two addresses that will be most convenient for you, rather than try to change your address every month or so. If you later decide to move permanently, notify social security of your new address.

Q. I work in a day care center operated by my church. Since my work is not covered under social security, I do not pay contributions to the program. Can I voluntarily pay into social security so I will be able to get monthly benefits at 62?

A. No. You cannot voluntarily contribute to social security to build up credit toward benefits. There is a way for employees of nonprofit religious organizations to get social security coverage. For full details, contact any social security office.

Have a question about social security and its retirement, survivors, disability or Medicare benefits? See your telephone directory for the phone number and address of the nearest social security office.

Over 150 million social security numbers have been issued since 1936.

Six County 4-H Members Attend District Club Camp

Six Jones County 4-H Club members attended the District III 4-H Club Camp at the Presbyterian Camp Grounds in Buffalo Gap, on June 29, 30 through July 1, according to news this week from Kirby Clayton's office.

During the three day camp the club members participated in baseball games, swimming, washers and horseshoe pitching. Night recreation programs included talks by Dr. Lovelace on "Salmon Fishing in Alaska," and Mr. Joe Wilson on "Tour of Ireland." Vespers were held each evening at 10 o 'clock.

Also included on the camp agenda was a tour of Dyess Air Force Base, arranged by County Agent Kirby Clayton.

Those attending from Jones County were Joe Stewart, Guyland Roberts, Gary Lain, and Ronny Green from Hamlin 4-H Club; Danny Anglin of Anson 4-H Club and David Boyd of the Lueders 4-H Club. Twenty other counties from the Rolling Plains area attended the encampment.

The group was accompanied to Camp by County Agent Kirby Clayton.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Missing Letter

There is something reassuring about the click of the mailbox latch, as your important letter slides down and out of sight. Whether you are making an insurance payment or meeting a tax deadline or completing a business deal, you feel relief: "Well, that's taken care of."

But what if the other party, perhaps weeks or months afterward, insists that your letter never arrived? If it came to a showdown in court, how would you stand?

Fortunately, the law offers you a helping hand in the form of a "presumption." That is, the law will presume that the letter did arrive, provided you had the correct amount of postage and the correct address. As one court explained:

"It is a presumption founded on the probability that (postal employees) will do their duty."

Furthermore, you may get the benefit of the presumption even if the letter was not placed directly into a mailbox. One court applied the presumption to a letter handed to a mailman (while on duty). Another court applied it to a letter dropped into the mail chute of an office building.

However, there are limits. The presumption was denied when a man simply left some mail in an open lobby, in the expectation that the mailman would eventually pick it up.

Furthermore, like most presumptions, this one is subject to being defeated if there is sufficient evidence against it.

In one case, an embattled debtor claimed to have mailed an important legal notice to the office of his creditors. But in a court hearing, both partners in the firm took the witness stand and solemnly swore that the notice had never been received.

Then their bookkeeper took the stand and swore the same thing.

This testimony was enough to convince the court that the letter had indeed failed to reach its destination. It was more likely, said the court, either that the debtor had neglected to put it in the mail or that the post office had—for once—neglected to do its duty.

Philosopher Comes Out Against New Chemical To Make People Remember

(Editor's note: The Neinda Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Route One tackles a new problem this week.)

Dear editar:

According to an article I read yesterday while resting my brain from all the secret documents the newspapers have been filled with lately, scientists have been working on a new chemical they claim will improve man's memory.

They haven't tried it on people yet, but they say it may be possible to develop a chemical that'll perk up the memory section of the brain and enable a man to remember far more than he now does.

If there ever was a piece of information that ought to have been classified as Top Secret and not to be published for at least a hundred years, that should have been it.

That sort of chemical, if it works, will wreck most governments of the world. What politician could stay in office more than one term if people remembered today what he said six months ago? From the Peloponnesian War to modern times, how many peace candidates have would up as elected war leaders? Don't ask me because I forget.

If taxes had been reduced every time a cut has been promised, a man could live mighty cheap just on pleasnat memories.

If Congress is smart it'll ban this new memory chemical before it gets out of the test tube. A forgetful electorate is the key to a happy officialdom, and the same goes for most marriages, all human relations and a good many children.

Other people's forgetting is one of the handiest things ever invented to keep a man going.

Those scientists are working on the wrong chemical. What I want is one that'll blot out, not freshen, some of the recollections some of my neighbors have.

You show me a man who can remember everything and I'll show you a man who knows more than he should about you and me.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

STATE Capital NEWS
By VERN SANFORD

(Editor's Note — Bill Boykin replaces Vern Sanford as columnist of this weekly Texas Press Association feature. Sanford retired July 1 after serving TPA for almost 24 years. This column solicits questions about state government news and information. Address your questions to this newspaper, and they will be forwarded to the Austin office.

AUSTIN, Tex. — July 1 turned out to be a costly date for Texans. Not only did the nearly $1 million-a-day ($604 million biennially) tax bill take effect, but property owners got notice of hikes of up to 25 percent in their insurance rates. And just the day before (see below) the State Insurance Board staff recommended an average 2.8 percent increase in private auto insurance coverage effective September 1.

Tax bill raises the general sales tax from 3.25 percent to four percent statewide (five percent in many cities which also levy a local sales tax); adds three cents a pack to cigarette taxes; increases liquor tax about seven cents a fifth; raises beer tax a fraction of a cent a bottle; jumps sales tax on new cars to four percent (bringing in car rentals) and jacks up corporate franchise levy $1.25 per $1,000 of capital.

A 10 percent tax on mixed drink sales went into effect last month.

A new kind of "surtax" takes effect September 1. It will cost moving traffic law violators $2.50; other misdemeanor violators tried in county court, $5, and those convicted of felony, $10.

Raise in homeowners' and other kinds of property insurance came without formal announcement other than notices to local agents.

Homeowners' rates rose 25 percent along the seacoast (hit by Hurricane Celia last August) and in tornado-struck north-northwest territory of the state. Central area homeowners' rate jumped 22.1 percent, too.

Extended coverage of all classes went up 25 percent on the coast, 24.5 percent in north-northwest and 19.7 percent in the central area. Extended coverage for dwellings is up 25 percent on the coast and north-northwest 19.3 percent in central part of the state.

Fire insurance coverage increases 5.2 percent — or 7.1 percent for dwellings.

AUTO INSURANCE UP AGAIN? — State Insurance Board staff recommended an average 2.8 percent statewide passenger car insurance rate hike effective September 1.

Board heard recommendations at a public hearing here June 30 and indicated a decision will be made about mid-August.

Industry, which won a 14 percent boost in rates January 1 after asking 27.7 percent, is asking 9.8 percent increase (average statewide) on passenger car coverage.

Seven state legislators and the state AFL-CIO president argued that a decline in accidents justifies lowering rather than raising rates. Since rates are fixed by territories, not statewide, some areas under Board staff recommendations would receive reductions in certain lines of coverage.

MORE WELFARE WOES LOOM — A top court decision declaring needy non-citizens eligible for assistance, threat of increasing finance burdens from federal legislation and rising medical costs put the State Board of Public Welfare on red alert again last week.

Board was told the federal bill would "save" the state $57.1 million in existing payments — bur might double the number of Texans eligible for medical care benefits (which will cost $135.7 million next year).

Supreme Court decision on aliens would add 20,000 to state welfare rolls overnight at a cost of more than $10 million a year, Deputy Welfare Commissioner Herbert Wilson estimated.

New welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said negotiations are under way to place limits on runaway medical care costs, while maintaining adequate services.

18-YEAR-OLDS CAN VOTE — Texas' 18-19- and 20-year-olds who are registered to vote can participate in any election starting this month, Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. points out.

Ratification by the 38th state of the teen-age voter constitutional amendment placed it into effect immediately, Dies said.

Any election which is now in progress "must allow those 18, 19 and 20 years old to vote if they are presently registered," Dies, chief eelection officer for Texas, advised.

Young voters not now registered must wait until registration period reopens October 1.

SHORT SNORTS

State general revenue deficit dropped from a peak of $173.5 million April 29 to $11.9 n illion million June 24 and will go into the black by August 31, State Treasurer Jesse James reports.

Bids on the second phase of construction of the $3 million water exchange pass across Mustang Island will be opened July 12 by Parks and Wildlife Department.

Parks and Wildlife Department won three major awards in international competition for best conservation information programs.

Ardell M. Young of Fort Worth was named by Gov. Preson Smith to succeed retired 153rd District Judge Harold Craik.

New state bank charters are sought in Sattler (Comal County) and Katy (Fort Bend County).

R. H. (Dick) Cory, former Victoria legislator, succeeds Homer Leonard as general counsel and executive vice-president of Texas Brewers' Institute.

SAVE NOW DURING GE's 14th ANNUAL

BIG SAVINGS ON GENERAL ELECTRIC APPLIANCES-STEREO-TV

For the 14th year in a row — here comes the General Electric appliance train! It's loaded with GE refrigerators, freezers, color TV's, washers, dryers, air conditioners and other major items for your kitchen and/or home entertainment. At big savings for you! Here's why:

GE is the only major manufacturer which ships all its appliances from one location — Louisville, Kentucky. Each year at the start of the summer season the Southwest Distributor assembles at the factory a large selection of special production models. Included are some closeouts and discontinued models. These are ordered by dealers in the Southwest at savings from regular prices. Because most of this merchandise is delivered by direct-to-dealer rail cars, savings are made in freight, warehousing, handling and paperwork. These savings are passed on to you — as much as $80.00 on some items.

Naturally, there is a limited supply of some models. So don't delay — if you plan to buy a major appliance, color TV or stereo soon, shop these bargains today!
